

Stable-2007/ Acute-2007 Regional Training Sessions

Monday, October 3rd
Canandaigua, NY

Wednesday, October 5th
Albany, NY

Thursday, October 6th
New York City, NY

The Stable-2007 and Acute-2007 are dynamic sex offender risk assessment instruments developed by Hanson, Harris, Scott, & Helmus (2007).

The Stable-2007 was developed to assess change in enduring dynamic risk factors that are amenable to treatment interventions, assess treatment needs, and help predict recidivism of sex offenders.

The Acute-2007 was developed to assess factors that are suggestive of sexual recidivism taking place in the near future.

The Stable-2007, Acute-2007, and the Static-99 can be combined to produce an overall assessment of a sex offender's recidivism risk.

The training will be delivered by Dr. Robin Wilson

This 1-day training will provide participants with hands-on training in the Stable-2007 & Acute-2007. After the training, participants will be required to complete a few practice scoring cases to be qualified to use these instruments in their daily work practices. Additional information on the training is available on page 2 of this flyer and at www.nysatsa.com.

TARGETED AUDIENCE: Treatment Providers, Parole/Probation Officers, Individuals conducting risk assessment and all other individuals who work within the sex offender management field
